n account of sickness in the house

We are rejoiced to find that the renowned Chemist of New England, Dr. Atsa. has at length turned his attention to the disorder which hangs like blighted on our community. Our section is as healthly as any other, with one single exception, and that is the Fores and Ague, which limints us on every side. But his remedy does cure, as we should know it must, if he made it. Cast out this baleful distemper from among as, and ours is one of the leveliest spots in the West. - Sintinel, Fairfield, Journ.

TO BE CONTINUED. A story is current in Washington that when old "Fuss and Feathers" sneaked into the White House on his return from Centraville, Lincoln sung out: "Hello, Winfield, what in the devil brought you back already?" Scott replied: "If you had seen what I did, Beauregard coming after you full speed on a big horse with his head shot off, you would have gone to Springfied," General Scott then proceeded to "take the oath."

ARE WE BELLIGERENTS?—In the New Times we find the following:

Exchange of Prisoners.—A telegram from Washington says: "The question of the exchange of prisoners, which has been the subject of con-siderable consideration, has not yet been decided. President Lincoln is firmly opposed to any recognition of the rebels as a belligerent power."

beligerent power."

However disagreeable it may be, President Lincoln will probably be under the same necessity of recognizing this fact, as he is of recognizing any other. Even he must be tolerably well satisfied by this time that the country is at war with some-body that is entitled to be called a "power." He can neither cheat himself nor the country into any debusion as to the the county into any delusion as to the magnitude of the contest, by refusing it a belligerent name. The exchange of pris-oners is an insident of all wars—not because both sides, or either side, claim to much more humane to exchange prisoners than it is to hang them. The country will be much better satisfied to support this contest, with both men and money. when it learns that it is to be waged in accordance with theusages of civilzed and

Christian nations. THE CAPTURE OF FORT HATTERAS,-The Petersburg (Va.) Express, in an article on the capture of Fort Hatterns by the Federals, remarks: Hatteras was, in their eyes, an impor tant point, as it afforded, by means, of the temporary fort which has been erected there since the war broke out, protection and facilities to our privateers and vessels running the blockade. It is not intrinsi-cally of any value to the Yankees, being nothing but a sand-bank separated from the mainland by Pamlico Sound, a shallow body of water 80 miles long and from ten to twenty-five miles wide. It is exposed to all the dangers and inconveniencies which are peculiar to that part of our Atlantic coast, and which, in fact, make it the terror of navigators. When the equinoctial season comes, as soon it will, and the winter surf beats in all its fury upon its beach, Hateras will prove to its captors anything else than a comfortable posses sion. All that they can do in meadtime is to annoy the opposite shores across the Sound with piratical boat expeditions when they think they can do so with

Although of no actual value to the Yankees, Hatterns is worth something to the Confederates as a point to intercept with privateers Northern vessels engaged in the West India, Mexican and South American trade. Many captures have recently been made in its vicinity, and paid handsomely. It will, however, be an exceedingly difficult, if not altogether impracticable job, to retake it, in consequence of its distance from the mainland and the command of the waters around it by the Yankee fleet. If the Confederates could land a sufficient force on the island, they would soon have full possession of it. They may possibly be able to devise some feasible plan of reaching it. but they must be quick about it if such a movement is contemplated.

One thing, at all events will have to be . done. An army will have to be sent down to the island coast to protect it against predatery excursions—the thievish boat raids—which will be made across the Sound by the Yankee pirates as soon as they establish themselves on the sand bank which they have seized. We pre-sume that the North Carolina and Confederate Governments will, of course, have a special efe to this matter. And just here we may remark, that in view of this Hatterns affair, and of the immense ascendancy of the Yankees on the ocean, every State South of Virginia, with an extensand deflars as a donation for the erection live scabord, ought forthwith to go to work vigorously to put if in as complete work vigorously to put if in as complete. Not a day should be lost in securing this great desideratum. Every fort should be speedi-ly supplied with an efficient armament
